Contents of this article Create a drawing Create a drawing. At the lower left corner, the Autodesk logo appears. Click the Autodesk logo to open a new menu and choose New, then click 2D Drawing. A new 2D drawing window opens. It contains the active layer (DRA), which is used to store drawing objects. The Layers list box shows the DRA and the default drawing background. Each item in the list box represents a drawing object. The Layers list box provides several methods to draw and edit objects. Objects can be turned on and off using the Layers list box. If objects are turned on, they are shown on the drawing canvas as well as in the Layers list box. In addition, they are shown in the Layers list box using one of the following colors: blue (selected), red (currently active), gray (not currently active), or black (hidden). Object colors are assigned automatically. The default color of an object is black. To edit an object, select it using the Layers list box. Click to create a new layer and draw. A new window opens, where you can modify the object. The default layer is the active layer. The Active layer is the top layer of the drawing. Clicking the DesignCenter link opens the DesignCenter. You can quickly edit or add objects on the drawing canvas by clicking the DesignCenter link at the upper left of the drawing canvas. You can save your drawing by right-clicking anywhere in the drawing. The drawing can then be saved to disk. A dialog box opens. Type a file name and save the drawing. A new dialog box opens, where you can open your drawing. Click to browse through the available drawings. Drawing options Drawing options. You can open the Drawing Options dialog box by clicking the Drawing Options button. The Drawing Options dialog box allows you to change the appearance of the drawing, such as the type of text, color of text, and symbols you use. Click General for the list box on the left. Click General tab. The Use Objects in Drawing box displays the type of objects you use. The box shows the three most recently opened objects. The New Object is an inactive object, which is not shown on the canvas. You can close or cancel editing of the object in the drawing
